

Bio: Prof. Dr. Roman Inderst

Roman Inderst is a Professor of Economics and Finance at the Goethe University Frankfurt. Before returning to Germany he was Full Professor of Economics and Full Professor of Accounting & Finance at the London School of Economics. Previous positions include that of tenured Professor of Finance at INSEAD. He currently keeps an affiliation also with Imperial College London.

Roman Inderst graduated in Germany and holds degrees in Economics, Sociology and Business Studies. His current research interests include banking regulation, retail finance and consumer protection, as well as competition theory and policy. The leading “Handelsblatt-Ranking” has consecutively ranked him first in terms of current research output among economists in German speaking countries as well as among German speaking economists abroad.

He is also a recipient of the Leibnitz Preis (2010) and one of only three German economists who were awarded the highest European research grant (ERC Advanced Grant).

Roman Inderst is a frequent adviser to regulatory and competition agencies and firms, in particular on matters of financial regulation, competition & antitrust and consumer protection (e.g., SANCO, FSA, CC, OFT, BMELV). He is a member of the Advisory Council of the German Federal Department of Industry, a member of the Advisory Group at the Chief Economist of DG Comp (EAGCP) and a previous External Consultant/Research Fellow of the ECB.